WELCOME TO BRAINTREE HIGH SCHOOL

PRIDE

Proud to be a Wamp

On Thursday, September 6, 2012, more than 1,500 students stepped through the freshly painted doors of Braintree High School. Nervous freshmen entered the school searching anxiously for their classes. Sullen sophomores slowly strolled into the main foyer, saddened to see the end of summer. Jaded juniors arrived dreading SATs and wishing they were just one year older. But on that sultry summer morning, amidst the gloom and doom of all these underclassmen was a source of optimism unlike any other; an irresistible force of excitement that was about to shake Braintree High from its summer slumber: the seniors.

On September 6, the class of 2013 charged into Braintree High with a bolt of positive energy. Undeterred from being forced to buy fruit in the lunch lines and unabsorbed by rumors of the possible ban of yoga pants and cheesy bagels, the seniors provided the cathartic spark that would ignite the new school year. It was our time. With a new paint job, not only did the school cease looking like a prison, but it also stopped feeling like a prison. It was our year; our turn. We were ready to make our mark. We were ready to rule the school.

Our conducive confidence and poignant optimism, however, were harshly juxtaposed with an immense responsibility. With a new headmaster, Mr. Lee, a new housemaster, Mr. Riordan, and the tragic loss of the world's greatest guidance counselor, Mr. King, we, the seniors, were the ones with seniority. We, the seniors, were the ambassadors of P.R.I.D.E. The future of Wamp Nation would rest on our shoulders.

So, as seniors, we held our heads high as we began our final year at BHS. We carried with us our books. We carried our pens and pencils. Some carried football pads and some carried soccer cleats. Some had running shoes, some brought tap shoes. There were seniors with cameras and seniors with band instruments. Most importantly, though, we carried our pride. We had pride for our school, pride for our community, and pride for the lives we led.

While this would mark the last first day of school for the Class of 2013, the seniors knew that the pride we had for our school was something we would take with us for the rest of our lives. We showed the underclassmen what Braintree Pride was all about on that September morning when we entered the school. And we will continue to show pride in everything we do after graduation in June, as we enter the world.

PEOPLE

Proud to be Yourself

Twenty, thirty, forty years from now you'll be getting ready for your High School Reunion and chances are, you'll pull out this yearbook. You'll flip through the pages searching for that one old friend of yours whose name is right on the tip of your tongue. You know he's in here somewhere! And then, you find him, right at the bottom of page 43. You're relieved. Now you can go to the reunion in confidence because you remember everyone. Well, not quite.

There's that girl from Spanish class, or was it math class, who you think is at the top of page 57 but she could also be the one on page 8. Soon, it occurs to you that your senior class was pretty big and that you didn't know all 379 people back then, so you probably won't know them all now.

Your class isn't historically huge. 379 people, is nothing compared to the class of 77's 768 people. Still, though, if you were on the top of a tower of 2013's seniors stacked head to toe, you would be 2 ½ times taller than the John Hancock Building in Boston. Together, the senior class this year weighs over 29 tons (and that's before lunch).

The following 75 pages display the faces of the BHS seniors and faculty of 2013. We hope these pages help you out a little bit when you're mind goes blank at that reunion, but in the meantime, just enjoy these pictures while they're still not embarrassing. I mean, one of these people is bound to be famous someday, right? And when they are, they'll end up on Ellen or some future talk show and their class photo will be displayed on live television for millions of viewers to laugh at. So enjoy these pictures now, while we're all still relatively attractive.

TO THE CLASS OF 2013:

Congratulations to our most recent collection of Wamp Alumni! As you bask in the glow of this accomplishment, please understand that your life's journey is simply beginning and it is with PRIDE that we look forward to watching you prosper outside that walls of our school. We hope that the knowledge, the skills, the support, and the experiences that you have received at Braintree High School will be your foundation as you apply your significant skills to the challenges ahead.

In the years ahead, you will use the education you have received in the Braintree schools to make the decisions that will guide your life. At each moment of choice, remember the ideals of PRIDE and seize the opportunity to improve the world around you for the benefit of those for whom you care, for your community, and for yourself. The limits to your achievements can only be established by you, and you alone will determine how your success will be measured.

Most importantly, enjoy the life your efforts and talents will earn you with the knowledge that you decide the path of your existence. The entire staff at BHS believes in your ability to help improve our common experience while still finding joy and satisfaction in your personal pursuits. Congratulations Class of 2013!

Braintree Public Schools Administration

As you move on to the next phase in your life, these qualities, practiced on a daily basis, will serve as the best predictors for your future success. I wish all of you the very best in whatever path you choose to follow.

Proud to be a Wamp

We are the people living in these crowded halls, facing the familiar sounds of lockers slammed, bells rung, and lessons learned. We are the loyal fans of wamp nation trudging up those bleachers in rain or shine to support our determined athletes. We come together in trying times to show strength and bravery. With the loss of a dedicated headmaster, a house master, our beloved director of guidance, and an adored math teacher, we have kept these individuals in our hearts as we honor their lives and their achievements.

We are proud to be Wamps. Regardless of our position in the community, we exceed expectations and excel in the tasks we fulfill each day. It is our duty as the students, teachers, athletes, thespians, fans, audience members, and the like to live through our mission statement and honor our school.

We take pride in the schoolwide environment we have worked to establish for the members of Braintree High School. We strive to improve ourselves and the school around us in every way possible.

We have spent our past four years preparing to move out and start a new chapter of our lives. No matter where we end up, we will always bring a piece of Braintree High with us. Whether it is an exercise learned in a classroom, or a life-changing experience, we will bring these lessons with us into the future to utilize in our everyday lives. Our high school days have shaped who we will become as adults. We are and always will be the heart of wamp nation. Once a wamp, always a wamp.

Silly string plastered the stairwells and hordes of Vikings roamed the halls. It could only mean one thing: Spirit Week 2013 was finally here. Spirit Week went off with a bang. Monday mornign brought a rush of Vikings "storming the gates" of BHS. (Rumor has it that they sailed all the way over from the other side of the treacherous Sunset Lake.) Tuesday featured the previous decades' greatest hits broadcasted throughout the halls from Alison Page's boombox. At Friday's pep rally, MC'd by Colleen Quinn and Michael Sullivan, the Seniors were represented well by Kevin Hall in the annual class dance-off.

Proud to be involved

A club is an ultimate example of pride. What shows more pride than dedicating precious time after school? Whether it be Math Team or Mock Trial, Student Council or Stone Soup, Key Club or Chorus, students exhibit their best colors when they are doing what they love. Many students have discovered new things that they may have never tried before. The I in PRIDE is Involvement; what screams involvement more than staying after school to pursue what you're interested in?

The umbrella term of the club encompasses all types of activities. Students Against Destructive Decisions (SADD) work to make students aware of their present dangers, just as Cultural Awareness Club (CAC) strives to make students more aware of our school's diversity. The Science Olympiad Team faced against other teams in a scientific showdown. Stone Soup is our school's literary magazine. The Math Team goes from school to school, facing off against other algebraic whizzes. The Mock Trial Team goes up against other schools in real courtrooms. Understanding the importance of teamwork, the Academic Decathlon (AcaDeca) Team, takes one huge exam on topics from Russia to the French Revolution. Best Buddies involves students establishing friendships with those with special needs. Theatre Guild puts on two fantastic productions per year: a musical and a set of one act plays. Band Geeks and Orch Dorks provide our school with music and culture. Gay Straight Alliance (GSA) works to facilitate equality within our walls. Environmental Club added earth friendly initiatives to our school to help make it a greener place. Along with these, many other groups focus on collaboration and making our school a better place.

Being in a club brings students together and makes our school united. As we look back on our high school careers, we can look back with pride not only on our academic achievements, but our extra curricular activities as well. Be proud of what you did, what you tried, and what you loved.

Proud to be an Athlete

FFour quarters, three periods, two halves. It doesn't matter how you divide it up; it only takes one second to completely change the course of a game.

In the wide world of sports, the last second shots, the buzzer beaters, and the walk off homeruns, get all the credit. But true athletes know that no victory comes without a hard-fought battle. The tip off, the kick off, the first pitch, even the coin toss can be a game changer.

But by far, the largest athletic force at BHS isn't on the field at all. No, it's not the kid sitting on the bench, and sorry, but it's not Cara the trainer either. It's Wamp Nation.

The Braintree Wamps have one of the most notorious fan-bases in the entire MIAA. The roar of a BHS crowd, whether it's at the Pep Rally in October, or the Boston Garden in February is infectious. The crowd's decibel level at Herget Gymnasium has reached an intensity such that many have reported trouble hearing the buzzer. The miniature earthquakes that occur in the stands after a goal is scored have been rumored to reach 8.5 on the Richter scale. Whether it's a record breaking swim time, the farthest shot-put thrown in a decade, the Divas making their way to nationals, or a once-in-a-lifetime basketball game at the Hall of Fame in Springfield, the Braintree student body is always there for the support of our athletes.

So Wamp Nation, keep up the good work.

And fans, keep on doing what you do best. Every clap; every scream; every "I believe that we will win," and every "Ay-Wamps" that comes from the top left corner of the bleachers is a hard-fought reward; a motivation more effective than any sports-drink. Our athletes don't need steroids or HGH because they have the best fans on Earth.

Proud to be from Braintree (Once a Wamp, Always a Wamp)

There are plenty of reasons to lie about being from Braintree. I mean, just look at the word "Braintree." Is that not the weirdest name for a town that you've ever heard of? When someone asks you where you're from, maybe you say "Boston" because of the look you know you'll get if you say Braintree and because you don't feel like explaining that "Braintree" is an Anglo-Saxon term for "by the river" (referencing the mighty Monatique).

But as a citizen of Braintree, there are plenty of reasons to be proud of where you come from:

1. Braintree was the birth place of John Adams! (He was born in 1735 in a part of Braintree that is now Quincy. Norfolk County is the birth place of 4 Presidents: John Adams, John Quincy Adams, JFK, and George H.W. Bush!)
2. Braintree is home to 5-corners which, before they added the traffic lights, was considered one of the world's deadliest intersections!
3. The South Shore Plaza is the largest mall in New England! (It was even the backdrop for the blockbuster hit Mall Cop starring Kevin James.)
4. Braintree is one of four communities in Massachusetts that has a city form of government but still refers to itself as a town. (The official name of Braintree is "The City Known as the Town of Braintree.")
5. Braintree is home to 11 Dunkin Donuts locations as well as Dunkin Donuts University. So, while America runs on Dunkin, Braintree sprints on Dunkin.
6. Braintree is the birthplace of Olympian and all-around amazing person Boo Morcom. (You can learn all about him on page 172.)
7. The conviction of suspected anarchists Ferdinando Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vincetti for their 1920 armed robbery of a South Braintree shoe factory made headlines worldwide and sparked controversy over the death penalty.
8. Other notable Braintree residents include Mark Wahlberg, Mo Vaughn, Butch Stearns, Jim Calhoun, and Joe Amorosino.
9. Watson Park in East Braintree is named for Thomas A. Watson, who famously saved Alexander Graham Bell when, during the first ever telephone call, Bell spilled acid on himself.
10. Braintree was named one of America's 100 best communities for young people in 2012 by America's Promise Alliance.

Great friends, great memories.

Be sure to always "reach for the sky" because "nothing's impossible". "All it takes is faith and trust" because "all of our dreams come true if we have the courage to pursue them". "The way to get started is to quit talking and begin doing". Be sure to always "reflect before you act" because "sometimes the right path is not the easiest one". Always stay "true to your heart" and remember "the more you like yourself, the less you are like anyone else, which makes you unique". Be an active participant in life, "life's not a spectator sport. If watchin' is all you're gonna do, then you're gonna watch your life go by without ya". Wake every morning saying "bakuna matata...it means no worries for the rest of your days"

"Life's like a movie. Write your own ending"

Love to you always,

*"If ever there is tomorrow when we're not together, there is something you must always remember

BLAST FROM THE PAST:

RICHMOND MORCOM

Boo was the captain of the '38-'39 track team. Peppy, athletic, amiable, and full of fun, all these things aptly describe Albert Richmond Huxley Morcom.

Gym Team 1, 4; Cross Country 2, 3, 4; Basketball 4; Indoor Track 4; Track 2, 3, 4; Senior Council 4; Write Ups 4.

The Most Famous Man You've Never Heard Of!

Meet Richmond "Boo" Morcom

"I went to 105 different countries. I won records everywhere. I've been there, done that, got the T-shirt and caught malaria."

Boo Morcom graduated in BHS's class of 1939, a track star and stand-out student. He went on to study at the University of New Hampshire, where his record in long jump lasted for 67 years. At the age of 19 he was the best pole vaulter in Massachusetts. After becoming the national champion for pole vault in 1942, Boo went on to serve in World War II. He received 6th place in 1948 Summer Olympics in pole vault and went on to win his second national championship in 1949. He graduated with a degree in biology, going on to coach track and field at the University of Pennsylvania for 35 years. He is responsible for starting one of the first ever track teams for girls and opened the Penn athletic facilities to underprivileged minority students. His career as a coach was interrupted when he entered the Korean War as an officer and paratrooper in the Army's 101st Airborne Division. In 1956, Boo became the USA Women's Olympic Track Team coach. A member of Masters Athletics, Boo held world records in the categories of high jump, long jump, decathlon, and pentathlon between the ages of 50 and 70. In fact, at the age of 66, Boo was still able to jump 12'6" in pole vault, as high as any high school athlete in New Hampshire. He has been inducted to the USATF Masters Hall of Fame, the Pole Vault Hall of Fame, the Massachusetts Track Coaches Hall of Fame, the Women's Track and Field Hall of Fame, and has won the New Hampshire Male Athlete of the Year Trophy. Aside from his athletic achievements, Boo was a member of Mensa International, a high IQ society. Some notable friends of his include Babe Ruth, Jesse Owens, Wilt Chamberlain, Jackie Robinson, and Eva Peron.

"I would go to Canada, set a record, come home. My wife would have my bag packed, and 12 hours later I was in South America talking to Eva Peron."

"When we get to heaven, we'll have a track meet, and everybody will be young and strong."

Jon.
Congratulations on all you have accomplished through the years!
Look how far you've come...
The future is yours!

We love you.

Pick a Super Power: Invisibility

Q: What is your ideal day?

A: An ideal day would involve getting a coffee and maybe a small breakfast and getting a chance to read the news either online or in the paper. I like to work out, so working out, spending time with my kids maybe at the beach. I love the beach, or a lake like Lake Winnepaukee. It'd end with a dinner with friends and I'd be in bed by 10.

Q: What is your best memory of High School?

A: I had a social studies class where literally every kid there was one of my best friends. I was in a class of about 400 kids but if I could pick 25 kids who I hung around with, they were all in this class.

Q: If you were a type of tree, what type of tree would you want to be?

A: An oak... at least I'd like to be an oak. I don't know if I would be an oak, but you said what type of tree I'd "want to be."

Q: If you had the chance to go back in time for one day when would it be?

A: I'd go back to my first daughter's birth. I was there and I enjoyed it, but she's 14 now and part of me regrets that I'm losing track of how she was when she was a child.

Q: What was the biggest surprise when you started working here?

A: Just how enthusiastic everybody is to be part of BHS and the passion which people bring to the school on a daily basis. Even just being a member of the school seems to be encouraging to the students who go to school here and the staff who come to school here. I think that's a great quality for a school to have and the intensity of it here definitely surprised me.

Q: Speaking of intensity, what did you think of your first BHS Spirit Week?

A: I thought it was great! I took a bunch of pictures in the cafe with all the colors and uniforms and sent them to people. I've been a part of other spirit weeks which didn't even come close to the level that was raised here. And it was awesome to send pictures saying "This is what it's like" and to get responses like "I can't believe that! I can't believe everybody's dressed! I can't believe everyone participates!" I loved it.... except for the Vikings.

Q: Who or what has inspired you to be the person you are today and why?

A: Professionally, it was a gentlemen named Steve Turner. He was a special education teacher in Wakefield. When I graduated my degree was actually in business. While I was looking for a job I substitute taught, and he had me as an aide in an alternative program. I just thought he did an amazing job with the kids, and he made me want to become a teacher.

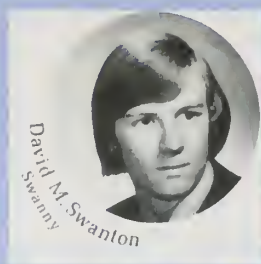

In terms of who has inspired me to be a better person, it would be my mom. She's probably the nicest person I've ever met in my life and if I could be half the person she is from a personal perspective, I think I will have accomplished something.

Retirements

This year, three amazing teachers will be leaving BHS: Ms. Spear, a Spanish teacher, Mr. Driscoll, an Alternatives teacher, and Ms. Lavelle, a preschool teacher. Additionally, Dr. Kurzberg, long-time Braintree superintendent of schools also announced his retirement this year.

We have also chosen to recognize Mr. Hurstak and Ms. Kreinsen-King on this page because we were unable to recognize them last year. Mr. Hurstak was the housemaster of House 3 and Ms. Kreinsen-King was an English teacher. Mr. Swanton, headmaster of BHS, also retired last year.

Editors' Note:

And now it's over. Four pep rallies, two proms, and an embarrassing number of cheesy bagels later; it's done. You've played in the games, performed the plays, read the books; you've taken the tests, and you've finally arrived here: the last page of your high school yearbook.

The moment is bittersweet. You know that you'll probably never see a lot of your classmates ever again. You know that years from now, you won't even recognize many of the faces in this book. But at 2:05 on May 21, that final bell will not only signify the end of your time at BHS. It will also ring in a new era, a new phase in your life. 2013 was our time. We were seniors. We ruled the school. Now, it's your time, so enter the world with the same Pride that you had here at BHS.

Thirty years from now, you'll pick up this book. It'll be covered in dust and the pages will have yellowed. Maybe there's a coffee stain or page 57 is ripped out. You'll open it up -maybe tonight is the class reunion or maybe you're showing your kids what you looked like in high school. Either way, I hope that when you read this page you're thinking two things:

1. Wow, BHS was awesome.
2. My life now is awesome too.

I hope that thirty years from now you love the life you're living. I hope that you're doing the things you once only dreamed about. I hope that the day-dreams you had in the back of math class are now your reality. I hope you're still a Wamp. And I hope you still live by the virtues of PRIDE.

Sincerely,
Tom Morin and Jenny Wong

*"And now the journey is over, too short, alas, too short.
It was filled with adventure and wisdom, laughter and love, gallantry and grace. So farewell, farewell." - Maurice Tempelsman*

In Loving Memory
Anthony Thomas King
July 15, 1949 - August 16, 2012

Irish Blessing
May the rood rise with you,

May the wind be always at your back,

May the sun shine warm
upon your face,

And rains fall soft
upon your fields,

And until we meet again,
may God keep you in the hollow of His hand.

John J. O'Connor & Son Funeral Home

*This yearbook is dedicated to Mr. Anthony King, beloved guidance counselor and director, mentor, and friend.
May he rest in peace.*
